

On eve of CPHI Hanns-Christian Mahler stresses the importance of holistic sterile drug product development

Basel, October 23, 2023: On the eve of CPHI, ten23 health®, a global contract development and manufacturing organization, today announced that CEO Hanns-Christian Mahler will give a webinar stressing the importance of holistic sterile drug product development. While the number of parenteral drugs reaching market continues to rise Mahler is concerned that their multiple components are still being optimised in silos and wants to ensure the issue is front of mind for attendees at the world's largest pharma industry meeting.

“It is becoming increasingly apparent that all components and parameters of parentals can and do interact leading to issues in stability, usability and manufacturing,” says Mahler, “As products become increasingly complex, I strongly believe that adopting a holistic approach towards drug development is the only way to ensure patients receive their full benefits. At ten23 health we see that doing so helps us to anticipate and mitigate issues, to ensure an efficient development & commercialization pathway. With this webinar and at CPHI we look forward to spreading this message amongst the global pharma community.”
